

Fun for some, but...

Do You Want to Assume the Risk?

A referendum on the November 2nd ballot will ask for permission to build a fiber optic system to provide cable television, internet and telephone service for Tri-Cities residents. Advocates claim they can build this duplicative system without using tax dollars, yet:

They provide no specifics as to how they plan to raise the funds to build or operate it.

They have offered no business plan.

They don't explain why private investors would take a chance on such a risky proposal.

They haven't addressed tax payer concerns about what will happen if the system fails.

If this referendum passes and the system fails, someone will be left holding the bag.
Vote No on the Broadband Referendum on November 2nd.
